

BANFF, THE BEAUTIFUL

Resort High up in Rockies Is an Ideal Place.

SURROUNDED BY VIRGIN FORESTS

In Short Distance From the Thriving Community There Is Good Hunting and Fishing—Fine Coal Mines Attract Hardy Workmen.

The exultant thrill of a new discovery fills your breast when, after two days of fruitless searching the western horizon, the Rocky Mountains rise for the first time on your sight.

From Calgary, nestled on the plains the route lies along the banks of the Bow River until the mountains rise like an impassible barrier before you then the train suddenly plunges into a deep gorge cut through the granite range by the prehistoric glacier, whose course is now followed by the river.

A short twenty miles from the edge of the plains lands you deep in the mountains. Here, in a little valley surrounded by peaks 10,000 feet high, you will find "Banff, the Beautiful," noted already for the exquisite character of its scenery and destined to become famous for its magnificent hotels and splendid baths.

The Canadian government, recognizing the beauty of the valley, and the value of the splendid hot springs that gush from the north side of Sulphur Mountain, has already established here a magnificent national park, twenty-six miles long by ten miles wide, which includes within its borders not only the valley but all the important peaks that surround it.

Banff is, first of all, a place for rest and leisure. The view from the hotels on the side of the mountains is one of the finest afforded by any resort in the world. Just below, Bow River dashes over the foot of Tunnel Mountain in a series of beautiful falls. From the south of the Spray River noted for its fine fishing and the extraordinary size of its trout, comes tumbling down to join the Bow, while the united rivers dash eastward toward the plains. On the right rises the peak of Rundle Mountain, while eastward, beyond the river, rise the snowy peaks of the Fairholme Range.

The really refreshing and health giving baths are no small attraction and in addition to the private swimming pools there are several nature's own—one beneath a dome-shaped cave and another, a natural basin, washed out of the solid rock, a sort of devil's washbowl, into which a large spring pours its streaming water.

Good roads and excellent trails prepared by the government, run in every direction and many delightful excursions are possible. One of the finest excursions is a twelve-mile drive north across the Bow River and around the foot of Cascade Mountain, down whose granite slides hang waterfalls of mist and spray, fed by the miniature glaciers that lie hidden in the vast seams and chasms of its peak. The road leads along the side of the Buffalo Range, where the Canadian government maintains one of the largest remaining herds of American bison.

At the foot of Cascade Mountain large anthracite coal beds have been found and a flourishing town is growing up about the mine. For a long way the road skirts the edge of the precipitous valley of the Cascade, another glacial river that empties into the Bow, and while the driving is perfectly safe, it appears sufficiently dangerous to satisfy any ordinary seeker after excitement or wild scenery.

A short distance above the mining camp the valley contracts into a beautiful gorge so narrow that the crossing is made from one rocky edge to the other on a rustic bridge of native timbers, while the river glides beneath.

The end of the drive lands you at the little inn overlooking Lake

Minnewanka, better known, however, as Devil's lake, noted for the excellent fish found in its waters. Here a steam launch will take you beneath the frowning cliffs of Mount Inglest, around into the valley of the Ghost River—a wild region full of caves and lost rivers which drop suddenly into subterranean channels, and leap again to the light gushing springs far below.

The most striking feature of the drive back from the lake to Banff is the remarkable face to be seen in the rocky outline of Cascade Mountain. The summit, seen against the evening sky, shows a perfect profile of Andrew Jackson with his face upturned to the heavens. His hair, reached far above his forehead, as seen in the familiar portraits, is the northern peak of the mountain, while along its southern slope is the outline of his high forehead and deep-set eyes, his sharp nose, his thin drawn lips and firm chin, all perfectly shown. There he lies, his nose turned up forever to the celestial grindstone in disgust that this, his greatest monument, should be found outside his native land.

Above the falls of the Bow the river widens into a beautiful lake which half fills the valley and which furnishes excellent boating or canoeing for those who enjoy such sports.

Mountain climbing has not yet become the popular pastime in America that it is in Europe, but if you are looking for such strenuous sport there is no place where you can with greater comfort and ease begin its practice than among these monster hills. For beginners practice the easy dome of Tunnel Mountain, only 1,000 feet above the hotels, will be found to take less than an hour, after which the excellent trails to the summit of Sulphur Mountain will furnish only a half-day's climb for even the most inexperienced, while the view from its summit easily repays all the effort necessary to reach the top.—Four Track News.

Sousa's Daughter Now "In Society."

Among the interesting debutantes of the winter is Miss Helen Sousa, daughter of John Philip Sousa, "The March King." Her formal coming-out was at a reception on last Wednesday.

Miss Sousa's greatest interest is charitable work. At Mrs. J. Hood Wright's lawn fete two years ago she impersonated a Japanese girl. Miss Sousa is especially interested in the Home for Crippled Children.—New York World.

REST DAY FOR WORKERS

Government Meat Inspectors to Have One Holiday a Week.

LAW MAKES THEM WORK ALL TIME

Ministers Object to Federal Employees Being Compelled to Labor on Sunday—Would Stop the Slaughtering of Animals on First Day.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 21.—"I want the 2,000 meat inspectors employed by the Department of Agriculture and located in 1,000 packing and slaughter houses to have one day's rest in seven if this can be accomplished under a proper administration of the law and will meet the necessities of the public," said Secretary Wilson today.

The secretary says complaints have reached the department from various cities, some of them from New York clergymen, against the practice of slaughtering cattle on Sunday which necessitates the presence of the inspectors at those places. The meat inspection law contains no prohibition against this practice.

REICHMANN CASE IS STRANGE.

Army Officer Makes Peculiar Charges Against Department.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Army officers find inexplicable, if not indefensible, the expressions contained in a letter published in the New York papers and attributed to Capt. Carl Reichmann, Seventeenth Infantry, now on duty in Cuba.

That officer is made to say, in what is alleged to be a private letter to a friend, that he is languishing upon a suspicion of disloyalty because he is a native of Germany and cannot be trusted by members of the General Staff for service in that branch of the army.

There is much unwillingness to believe that Captain Reichmann wrote to any such effect, and most officers are prepared to anticipate the denial of authorship.

The indiscreet publicity will probably be made the subject of official inquiry.

Captain Reichmann has had more detached duty than any other line officer of the army, and has been absent from his regiment as much as anyone. He has had numerous confidential tasks. He has not been selected as a member of the General Staff for reasons which exclude many other worthy officers from duty with that corps.

The members of the General Staff do not choose the officers of that body; that is done by a special board of high ranking army officers, who consider relative merits for this assignment.

Captain Reichmann's feelings, if correctly expressed in the published letter are regarded as superstitious. He has been singularly and notably trusted with important duties, and for the most part his military service has been considered as cast in pleasant places, oftentimes involving the most agreeable assignments and greater opportunities for distinction than most officers of the line.

Army officers in Washington who read the letter with amazement say that Captain Reichmann's statements that prejudice exists against him in the service because he is a German are bosh.

INDIAN RAILROAD CHIEF.

Pleasant Porter, of Creek Nation, President of New Company.

An Indian chieftain as a railroad president is a rare thing, but that is what Pleasant Porter, chief of the Creeks, is. His railroad is the Indian Central. It filed its charter at Guthrie and is capitalized at $15,000,000.

It contemplates the construction of 460 miles of railroad in Indian Territory and Oklahoma within the next two years. The road begins at Ponca City and runs southeast to Paris, Tex., with a branch line running from the Red River northward to Oklahoma City. The other corporations are E. T. Hathaway, Edward Overholser, William C. Reeves, of Oklahoma City, and Edward Halsell, of Muskogee.

The incorporation office will be in Oklahoma City, but the construction office and the headquarters of the operating department will probably be in Muskogee, the home of the president.

Road Surveyed.

The road, according to a preliminary survey, begins at Ponca, in Kay County, Oklahoma, runs southeast into the Osage Nation, crosses the Midland Valley near Skiatook, crosses the Osage Nation's line and enters the Cherokee Nation on Hominy Creek, crosses the Santa Fe near Collinsville and the Missouri Pacific in Claremore, all in Recording District No. 4.

From Claremore the road runs due south, crossing the Arkansas River near Stonebluff, and passing about half way between Muskogee and Okmulgee, crosses the Missouri, Kansas & Texas and Rock Island to the coal belt in the vicinity of McAlester, thence south east to a point on the Red River opposite Lamar County, Texas, and then direct to Paris.

The branch line will begin at a point in Recording District No. 25, in the Choctaw Nation, eighteen miles north of the Red River, and takes a northwesterly direction, will run direct to Oklahoma City. The main line from Ponca to Paris is 300 miles and the branch line is 160 miles, making a total of 460 miles.

It was stated by Chief Porter today that the road is an independent line, built for the purpose of connecting the Kansas system of the Missouri Pacific with the Texas system of the Pacific lines, and to develop a territory that hitherto has not been reached by any other road. It is undoubtedly curved to run through one of the richest mineral sections of the new state. It taps the Osage, Cherokee and Creek oil and gas fields, the coal mines of the Creek and Choctaw Nations, and gets into the building stone and timber of the Choctaw Nation.

Construction of the new road will begin at three points—one in Ponca, one in Choctaw Nation and another somewhere near the middle of the line. The construction is to be of the very best. Every opening is to be bridged with concrete and steel. The rails will be 90 pounds steel. The grade will be five-eighths of 1 percent, which is said to be the best grade of any line passing through the five nations.

Many Bridges Needed.

The heaviest construction will be the bridge work. There will have to be bridges built across the Arkansas in two places, the Verdigris, Deep Fork, North Fork, two Buggies, Brushy, Blue, South Canadian and the Red River. In addition there will be three tunnels in the Choctaw Nation—one 1,800 feet long, another 1,150 and the third 450 feet.

The officers of this company are perfectly frank in their statements as to the conditions of their plans. They state that the road is financed by Eastern people; that there will be engineers representing the men who are furnishing the money in the field at once, who will go over the preliminary survey, and that it will cost $15,000,000 to build the road and take two years to complete.

The practical railroad builders who are here with Chief Porter today, are men who have built other railroads in Indian Territory, and they state that the men who are furnishing the money already have railroad interests in the new state—Indian Territory dispatch to the Baltimore Sun.

DEER HOLDS CONDUCTOR ON CAR

One of W. K. Vanderbilt's Herd Has Some Fun Before Being Shot.

A large buck supposed to have been chased from William K. Vanderbilt's place, Idle Hour, at Oakdale Long Island, gave George Powers a freight conductor on the Long Island Railroad, an unpleasant hour last Friday.

At Idle Hour, where Mr. Vanderbilt keeps a large herd of deer, shooting is absolutely prohibited, and gamekeepers are employed to preserve the game. It is thought that some hunter started a buck on Mr. Vanderbilt's place and succeeded in making him jump the wall that incloses it. At any rate, the deer, seeing Powers standing beside two of his cars, lowered his antlers and charged him. Around the cars led the unfortunate railroad man, the buck gaining at every step. Finally Powers grabbed a handrail and climbed to the top of the car.

The deer proceeded to mount guard and kept the conductor there until the hunter crept up and shot his antlered majesty.—New York Tribune
